Life by Design Guide

Find your direction. Design your life.

*“The meaning of life
is to find your gift.”*

The purpose of life is to give it away.”

Pablo Picasso

SOUL · MIND · BODY

The three pillars of a life
by design.

HOW TO USE THIS

Block 45–60 minutes. Answer honestly — not optimistically.

Write the truth. There are no right answers. Only honest ones.

READ THIS FIRSTThis isn't about proving you're failing.

You're not here because your life is falling apart. You're here because on paper things look okay — job, income, habits, maybe even a relationship — yet something still feels off. Like you're on autopilot. Like you're not quite steering.

This guide is not a personality test, a productivity checklist, or a fix-yourself workbook. It's a 45–60 minute process to help you answer three questions:

“Why does life feel off when it looks fine?”

“What kind of stuck am I actually in?”

“What do my next 90 days need to be about?”

Block 45–60 minutes. Put your phone away. Write the truth — not what sounds impressive. There are no right answers. Only honest ones.

STEP 1 · SNAPSHOT

Where you actually are right now

Rate each area of your life from 1–10. Then write one honest sentence on why you chose that number. Don't overthink it — your first instinct is usually the most accurate.

Work · Career · Direction

Rate 1–10: ____ /10

Why this number?

Money · Financial stability

Rate 1–10: ____ /10

Relationships · Social connection

If someone looked at my life from the outside, they'd say...

If they could feel what it's like on the inside, they'd say...

STEP 2 · THE GAP

Life on paper vs life in your chest

Describe your life as it looks from the outside — then as it actually feels from the inside. Facts on the left. Truth on the right.

My work situation is...

Work feels like...

My living setup is...

Home feels like...

People would describe me as...

I'd secretly describe myself as...

What I'm 'known for'...

What I actually want to be known for...

Where is the biggest gap between how things look and how they feel?

Don't be vague. The more specific you are, the more useful this becomes.

Which part of that gap bothers you most right now?

STEP 3 · YOUR PATTERN

Name what you're actually dealing with

You're not 'just stuck.' Usually it's one of a few recognisable patterns. Read these four and circle the one that lands closest. You can be a mix — choose the one that hits hardest.

Type 1

The Drifter

Your days blur together. Nothing's on fire, but nothing feels truly yours either.

- You feel like you're watching your life more than living it.
- You keep saying 'I'll figure it out later.' Later hasn't come.
- Nothing right now feels like your 'thing.'

Type 2

The Burned-Out Achiever

You did what you were supposed to do. It paid off. Just not how you expected.

- You hit a goal and felt more 'now what?' than satisfaction.
- You're tired in a way sleep doesn't fix.
- If this is success, why doesn't it feel like it?

Type 3

The Identity Mismatch

The life you've built fits an older version of you — but not who you've become.

- You feel like you're playing a role that used to be yours.
- Saying 'I don't want this path' feels ungrateful or scary.
- Part of you has outgrown your life. You haven't said it out loud.

Type 4

The Directionless Grinder

You're working hard. You're not sure what any of it is adding up to.

- You're always busy but can't explain what you're building.
- You hop between ideas hoping one will finally click.
- You're climbing a ladder — just not sure it's the right one.

In your own words — what does your version of this pattern look like?

Be specific. This is the most valuable thing you'll write in this whole guide.

STEP 4 · COMPASS SEEDS

What actually makes you feel alive

Before we map a direction, we need to know what actually energises you — and what quietly kills your aliveness. These are your compass seeds.

ENERGISERS

List 3–5 things (big or small) that reliably make you feel more awake, present, or like yourself.

Even if they feel unrelated to ‘productivity’ or ‘success.’

DRAINERS

List 3–5 things that reliably dull you, numb you, or make you feel less like yourself.

If you stripped away everyone else’s expectations — what would ‘a good life’ in the next 3–5 years actually look like for you?

Answer from where you are now, not from who you think you should be.

One thing from your current life you'd keep, no matter what changes:

One thing you'd happily drop, if there were no social or family consequences:

STEP 5 • 90-DAY DIRECTION

Direction, not a perfect plan.

You don't need a 10-year strategy. You need a 90-day direction. Something to orient toward — honest, specific, and yours.

CHOOSE ONE FOCUS AREA

If you could only meaningfully shift one area in the next 90 days — the one with the biggest ripple effect — which would it be?

- ☐ Work / Career
- ☐ Direction / Purpose
- ☐ Relationships
- ☐ Health & Energy
- ☐ Inner Life / Identity
- ☐ Creative Work
- ☐ Other: _____

YOUR 90-DAY DIRECTION SENTENCE

“For the next 90 days, I’m treating my life as an experiment in moving toward [X] and away from [Y].”

Example: “...moving toward work that feels like it fits me, and away from saying yes to things that only look good on paper.”

Now write yours:

For the next 90 days, I’m moving toward...

and away from...

THREE COMMITMENTS

One move →

I will make in the next 30 days that supports this direction:

One experiment →

I will try — without committing my whole life to it:

One stop →

Something I will stop or reduce to create space:

STEP 6 · REFLECTION

What came up for you?

What surprised you most as you went through this guide?

What feels clearer now than it did an hour ago?

What still feels confusing, heavy, or hard to decide?

This is usually the most important thing. Don't skip it.

You've already done more than most people do. You stopped autopilot long enough to look. That's rare. And it's the first real move.

You can close this and take your 90-day direction forward on your own. Or — if you want to go deeper — you don't have to do it alone.
